

software freedom day

september 16 2006

sharing = freedom

Did you know it is legal to share open source software? We will be sharing Linux software on software freedom day. There are creative commons licenses for making it legal to share alike, adapt, and give recognition for images

You can remix music which is licensed to allow derivatives. Some musicians develop music in collaboration. Creative commons licenses can be used to build remix friendly communities.

It is legal to re-use open source code in your projects, You need to release the code so that its legal for other people to have the same freedom as you.

we make freedom

When we license our work we define what is accessible for other people in our community. Our choices either expand or contract what is available for other people to use. Join us on software freedom day to celebrate making choices which provide

- transparency
- access to knowledge
- freedom to innovate
- freedom to interact freely with information

<http://softwarefreedomday.org>
<http://creativecommons.org>
<http://gnu.org>
<http://linux.org.au>

software freedom day

september 16 2006

sharing = freedom

Did you know it is legal to share open source software? We will be sharing Linux software on software freedom day. There are creative commons licenses for making it legal to share alike, adapt, and give recognition for images

You can remix music which is licensed to allow derivatives. Some musicians develop music in collaboration. Creative commons licenses can be used to build remix friendly communities.

It is legal to re-use open source code in your projects, You need to release the code so that its legal for other people to have the same freedom as you.

we make freedom

When we license our work we define what is accessible for other people in our community. Our choices either expand or contract what is available for other people to use. Join us on software freedom day to celebrate making choices which provide

- transparency
- access to knowledge
- freedom to innovate
- freedom to interact freely with information

<http://softwarefreedomday.org>
<http://creativecommons.org>
<http://gnu.org>
<http://linux.org.au>

